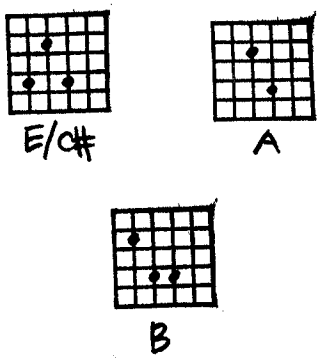
I Took My Eyes Off You



E/C# A
i know your secrets and i've been alone
E/C# A
i've seen you on the rooftop of a vagabond's home B A E/C# A
you wail and you whisper to the soft side of my head B A E/C# A
you laugh when you snare me and then you leave me for dead the rail and the rattle of fingerless hands pretending to be Gods' but with an earthly plan i peep through the portal to see that i might i should have learned better from the first time that you lied

E/C# i couldn't stay, i wouldn't go
i didn't dare tell you so
a fear of lambs, a fear of heights
afraid to look at your sacrifice
E/C# A
i took my eyes off you

so since you've been beaten the game is afoot you hide in my closet and tempt me to look i've been hiding out in trenches for one lie too long cinch down my belt and sharpen the sword you talk like the dealer of shards and remains when all you're really selling is a life locked in chains while you feed off my weaknesses does it bother your soul B A E/C# A

to know you can't own me once the fire has grown cold B A E/C# A A/G to know you won't own me once the fire has grown cold

i couldn't stay, i wouldn't go
afraid to look at your sacrifice
i took my eyes off you
